OPPENHEIMER & CO. INC. CLOSES ITS SIXTEENTH ANNUAL CONSUMER CONFERENCE IN BOSTON

New York – June 24, 2016 – Oppenheimer & Co. Inc. ("Oppenheimer") a unit of Oppenheimer Holdings (NYSE: OPY), held its 16th Annual Consumer Conference in Boston on June 21 and 22, 2016.

The two-day conference brought together leading public companies in the consumer sector, including Best Buy Company, Inc.; Six Flags Theme Parks, Inc.; Tiffany & Company; Buffalo Wild Wings; and Whole Foods Market, Inc. The purpose of the conference is to provide investors with a broad perspective about the industry. In addition to attending company presentations, institutional investors also met with management in group and one-on-one settings.

The conference highlighted the following Oppenheimer Research Analysts, who offered guidance on many aspects of the consumer industry:

- Anna Andreeva, Senior Analyst for Specialty Retail
- Brian Bittner, Senior Analyst for Restaurants
- Brian Nagel, Senior Analyst for Hardlines and Broadlines Retail
- Rupesh Parikh, Senior Analyst for Food, Grocery and Consumer Products
- Ian Zaffino, Senior Analyst for Special Situations

"The consumer industry remains a core focus for Oppenheimer, and we're committed to hosting a forum for our clients to discuss new trends and discover new investment ideas," said Erica L. Moffett, Managing Director and Associate Director of Research at Oppenheimer. "During the back half of the year, we start hitting back-to-school and holiday shopping periods. Having our consumer conference in June helps companies and investors stay ahead of the sector's outlook from a holistic standpoint."

Oppenheimer's next conference will be the 19th Annual Conference on Technology, Internet and Communications, which will be held on August 9-10 in Boston. Following that is the 2016 Life Sciences Summit, which will be held on November 29 in New York City. These meetings provide additional opportunities for investors to meet a cross section of management teams across a number of different business models.
